OCTOBER 2024

Friday Messages from Facilities Services AVC

I wanted to begin a new weekly email communication that would offer some facilities updates, general thoughts, and observations.

You will see an email from me on Fridays with these highlights going forward. I hope that you read them and feel free to reply with questions, comments, or thoughts.

So far, these updates have included thanking everyone for stepping up this summer to prepare the campus for another year, sharing the chancellor's retirement news, being mindful of driving around campus now that students are back, the opening of the new School of Business building, and welcoming our student workers and new College Corps fellow for the year.

COLORFUL REFRESH FOR GENOMICS INTERIOR

The first floor of the Genomics Building corridor is being refreshed by the paint and carpentry shops. Carpenter Santos Godina installed 25 new, corner guards and about 300 feet of chair rail to protect the walls. Painters Matthew Munton and Javier Pulido painted three different colors in the hallway and main elevator waiting room. With completion nearing soon, it's looking great so far!

PLUMBING TEAM TAKES CARE OF PIPELINE

The Aerial Methane Mapping Program by the local gas company utilizes aerial technology to scan leaks in distribution pipelines. A leak located at Agricultural Operations was a high priority repair and required heavy equipment and precision excavating due to other utilities in the area.

The plumbing shop diligently reviewed existing site plans and worked closely with the gas company to prevent any type of disruption to service.

Plumbers Steve Crook, Jeff Wyrick, and Omar Medel completed the repair within a week and were recognized for their hard work and persistence to find and complete the repair.
